

Wildlife veterinarian and storyteller Jerry Haigh shares his adventures with diverse creatures from Saskatoon's Forestry Farm Zoo, Sable Island, the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the Northwest Territories, the High Arctic and the Canadian prairies.

He dealt with the routine and not-so routine challenges of working across Canada from 1975 until his retirement from the Western College of Veterinary Medicine in 2009.

The collection of tales in this book are about the animals, not only porcupines and polar bears, but beavers, birds, bison, seals, skunks and many others, as well as the people he encountered during those years.
